

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to ion channel modulators. In particular, the invention relates to ion channel modulators that are derived from haematophagous arthropods. The invention also relates to the use of ion channel modulators from haematophagous arthropods in the treatment and prevention of certain diseases and conditions in mammals, including humans.